

Kennecott Eagle Minerals

Sustainable Development Policy 2012

We are committed to contributing to sustainable development. Not just because it is the right, responsible and ethical approach to managing the earth's natural resources and to safeguarding the health of the planet for future generations, but because it also makes sound business sense.

Specifically, Kennecott Eagle Minerals will:

- Ensure that health, safety and environmental protection, together with community values, are considered in business plans and decision-making.
- Identify and enhance social and economic sustainable development opportunities in surrounding communities by engaging with community stakeholders throughout the entire life cycle of the mining operation.
- Establish baseline measures, targets, and reporting requirements to document sustainable development performance.
- Verify and publicly report on sustainable development activities, including progress on meeting performance targets and action plans for continuous improvement.
- Support education and research activities dedicated to identifying best practices in protecting the health and safety of people and the environment.
- Develop and implement a health, safety, and environmental management system that incorporate clear guidelines and high standards to address sustainable development practices, including internal and external audits and reviews.

By earning a good reputation for our care of the environment, contribution to social improvement, and the economic conditions of local communities within a strong governance structure, we gain improved access to land, people, and capital — the three critical resources on which our business success is built.

Adam Burley
Kennecott Eagle Minerals President

John Haan
Project Development Director